(57) Abstract :

Framework designed is basically to check how much of the audience watching Television create an impact by seeing the advertisement on the programs broadcasted. The framework will also help in understanding of benefits the organization gets by creating the TOMA. It is very important for any brand to ensure that the TOMA for their product is relatively very high. This is the only way to see that the customer talks about the product and will also refer the products to other customers. Which is ultimately going to increase the business for the company. The TOMA can be easily created among the customers by making them to see that product again and again. In this scenario the Television will play an important role for the companies to create this TOMA. The organization which is interested in created TOMA about their products has to do a kind of research in terms of programs which are mostly watched by the users and they should also have complete information about the program on Television is meant for, what age group of people watch it, how many watch it and how long they watch. Based on the data captured we can then decide on the advertisement during those programs, provided the products match with the type of people watching the show. Here we have to see the TRP of the channel and the program which is broadcasted. Top-of-mind awareness should be a priority for any business. Staying top-of-mind means that you rank highly in the minds of consumers and it helps you attract leads and retain loyal customers. Top of mind awareness is defined as the first brand name that comes to someone's mind when asked about a specific industry. Top of mind awareness or TOMA is a key concept in market research. It is a measure of how high brands rank in the consciousness of consumers. The first brand that comes to mind when consumers think of a certain niche, product or industry has achieved top of mind awareness. Not all consumers will think of the same brand, but the results offer a clear indication of which companies are most popular within an industry. It's worth noting that sometimes the first brand people think of is one they dislike or one that was recently embroiled in a scandal. So TOMA can have negative associations. However, being top of mind is usually a big plus for brands.
